Help Keep Our Technicians Safe

Approximately 4.7 million Americans are bitten by a dog each year and more than 50 percent of these bites occur on the dog owner's property. If you own a dog, we need your help to keep ATC Communications technicians safe when they visit your home to install telephone, Internet, or TV services. Alarmed by an unfamiliar person, dogs sometimes attempt to bite our technicians. Please follow these simple tips to reduce the likelihood of bites:

- Check your yard before letting your dog out to make sure our technician isn't on your property.
- When one of our technicians comes to your home, keep your dog inside and away from the door, either in another room or on a leash. Allow a safe path for this person to access your telephone, computer, and/or television.
- Make sure your dog remains restrained until our technician leaves the area.
- Don't let your child get close to our technician in the presence of your dog. A dog's instinct is to protect family members from strangers.

Thanks for your cooperation with this important safety issue.

Trick or Tweet from the FTC

Just in time for Halloween: The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has 12 tweets about protecting yourself, your kids, and your computer when online. If you tweet or update your status on a social networking page, the FTC hopes you'll post one of these short messages to help spread the word on how to keep online goblins, ghouls, and ghosts away from your computer.

1. Are cyber ghouls and online scammers feasting on your computer? This Halloween, learn how to stop them at OnGuardOnline.gov.
2. Don't let someone decide to be you for Halloween. Read more about online identity theft at OnGuardOnline.gov.
3. Don't let computer security worries haunt you. OnGuardOnline.gov says to download software updates and patches often.
4. Garlic? Stake through the heart? OnGuardOnline.gov says only the latest security software protects you from online vampires.
5. Zombie warning! Update your security software often to protect your computer from zombie bots. Read more at OnGuardOnline.gov.
6. Don't let old security software spook you. Keep firewall, antivirus, and antispyware software updated, and visit OnGuardOnline.gov.
7. Don't let a virus ruin your Halloween spirit. Visit OnGuardOnline.gov for tips to keep your computer virus-free.
8. Beware of online tricks this Halloween and enable your computer's firewall. Find out more at OnGuardOnline.gov.
9. Don't be a "phish" for Halloween. Visit OnGuardOnline.gov to learn how to spot computer scams that try to hook your personal information.
10. When you tell kids about Halloween safety, tell them about online safety too. To learn how, read Net Cetera at OnGuardOnline.gov.
11. If you leave your laptop for "just a second," it could become someone else's Halloween treat. Visit OnGuardOnline.gov to learn more.
12. Can you spot an Internet scam dressed up as a great deal? Visit OnGuardOnline.gov for tips on how to spot online frauds.

The FTC works for the consumer to prevent fraudulent, deceptive, and unfair business practices in the marketplace and to provide information to help consumers avoid them. To file a complaint, or to get free information on consumer issues, visit www.ftc.gov.
